FARMS AND FARMING.

Notes on Dairy Topics. Tests made with the Babcock oil-test in several creameries in the famous Elvin district in Illinois showed a considerable variation in the butter-making capacity of the milk from different patrons. The highest percentage of butter fats in the milk in three instances was 5.95, 5.21 and 5.75 respectively, while the lowest three were 3.80, 4.02 and 4.04. This makes a difference of from 20 to 43 cents per hundred pounds in the price paid to patrons for their milk. The creamery owner who furnished these figures said he could see no more reason why a creamery should pay each patron the same price for milk that varied so much than the packers should pay the same price per hundred for beef of all kinds-good, bad and indiffereft. Undoubtedly he is right. The custom should and will be changed. And one good result of the change will be to stimulate milk-producers to raise the quality of the product.

The butter and cheese makers of New York are beginning to appreciate the folly of manufacturing an inferior article, and hoping at the same time to hold their market against all comers. The keen competition of the western butter makers and the growing cheese industry of Canada are sharp reminders that such a policy is short-sighted in the extreme. It is mortifying enough to have the "Bluencies" cutting out in England and on the continent with their superior cheese, but when they come right into our own market and get one to one and a half cents more per pound for their wares then ours fetchwell, isn't it about time that our dairymen took the hint and bestirred themselves to do better? When they do their best, they can't be beaten; and, by the same token, if they don't do their best they will be

The aeration of milk is one of the processes of improving the condition of the lacteal fluid that has "come to stay." Like steriligation—though not to the same extent-it removes impurities and greatly improves the keeping quality of the milk. The process consists in blowing pure, fresh air through the milk when it is warm from the cow. This drives out any taint and leaves the milk inodorous and agreeable to the taste, and much more wholesome than when not aerated. Dairymen say also that the saturation of gream with pure air greatly facilitates churning and Meteor, went to a drng store at Hillsdale, gives a finer granulation.

Weeding by Electricity.

A great source of annoyance and expense to railway companies is the encroachments of the grass which grows stepnd the rails of their lines. An effective made of getting rid of this nuisance has just been devised in the shape of an electrical vegetation destroyer. This consists of a wire brush, very much in appearance like an ordinary scrubbing brush. This is connected by a wire with a dynamo in the nearest available electric station. A powerful current is turned on and an operator drags the fully charged brush, which is supplied with a wooden handle, killing it inst. antly.

Winters grew colder, and one unprecedentedly severe season following another, the little gathering of squatters in that icy region was shut away from the rest of mankind by frozen fields along the shore and the heaping up of mighty ice cliffs, through which there was no passage and over which it was impossible to climb.

"That was six hundred years ago. Since then expedition after expedition has sought these lost settlers in vain. Owing to geographical indefiniteness in the original accounts written on the subject not even the locality occupied by the colony could be very nearly ascertained. A Royal Scare.

At a late banquet in the royal castle of Ludwigsburg in Wurtemberg a juicy roast of pork formed the piece de resistance, of which all the guests partook freely. The dish was not yet removed when an attendant handed to the king on a silver platter an official document which was nothing less than the result of the examiner, who stated that he had found the bit of pork submitted to him full of trichinae, all alive and kicking. There was Pianos, Organs a universal outcry of dismay. Everybody grew violently sick, and the assembly, just now all magnificence and politeness, was in an instant transformed into a sort of hospital ward, each man and woman vomiting or trying to vomit in order to get rid of the nauseating pork. Those who failed to relieve their stomachs had the doctors apply their stomach pumps. But the poor cook, who had been careless to dress, roast and serve the pig before the examiner to the court had sent in his O K, was dismissed in
